CALLING PARENTS OUT THERE....

School holidays are coming up fast and you may be wondering how you're going to juggle study and the kids.

If you have school-age children and need to come to lectures during the Sept/Oct School Holidays please contact Neroli (neroli.hollis@carey.ac.nz) as we are looking at putting together something to cater for the kids so you can attend class—yah!!

I recently spoke at a young adults camp in Foxton. The Young Adults Collective—out of Wellington—had organised this event and it was such a privilege to be a part of the weekend along with around 150 others. The camp's theme—IMAGinE—focused our attention toward the Image of God. We explored questions like what it means to be made in God's image, and the implications this may have for us as followers of Jesus Christ—the ultimate image bearer. We ended our time together gathered around the communion table as we asked ourselves, in whose image are we being transformed?

Can I encourage you; as you labour feverishly on assignments, sit through lectures, turn up to lunches, and work hard in your placement contexts. Don't forget in whose image you are made, and in whose image you are being transformed. Colossians 1:15-29.
