And they sang a new song, saying:

“You are worthy to take the scroll and to open its seals, because you were slain, and with your blood you purchased for God persons from every tribe and language and people and nation.

You have made them to be a kingdom and priests to serve our God, and they will reign on the earth.”

—Revelation 5: 9–10

The campus comes alive with numerous mission agencies on site, mission-focussed Chapel, lunches and prayer times.

This day is open to anyone who feels God is leading them to mission and want to explore how and where they could serve God in the world.

Do you know of someone who might be interested? Invite them to come along.

The Main Thing

As some of you know, about four weeks ago my immediate family and I said goodbye to my very frail mother and my mother said goodbye to us. The doctors who were about to amputate her left leg did not attempt to fudge the risks involved, as they did not think she would survive. In the rarefied pre-operation hours my wife, Angelika, asked my mother, “What one message would you like to leave with people?” Her response was most impressive: “How wonderful it is to have known the reality of God’s presence in all situations and have shared that with my family and friends. My prayer is that those who don’t know God will find the wonder of faith and his love.” Now, four weeks on, my mother (sans one leg) is doing remarkably well and buoyed by your prayers continues to live in God’s presence! May we all, like my mother, keep the main thing the main thing.
